Introduction

The HR Club organized a Group Discussion Activity. It is an interactive oral process where participants exchange ideas, thoughts, and opinions on a given topic in a systematic and structured manner. It aimed at equipping MBA students with essential human resource management skills through practical and interactive learning experiences. This activity was conducted by Dr. M. Surekha. This activity aims to observe participants' communication skills, ability to articulate their views, and collaborate in a team setting. The purpose of this report is to present an overview of the group discussion session, highlighting the topics discussed, key points raised, participant roles, and overall outcomes. The group discussion provides an opportunity for participants to engage critically with the subject matter, demonstrate leadership, and practice effective communication in a dynamic environment.

Description

Group discussion activity typically involves groups of participants engaging in a structured conversation on a following topic,

- Impact of Social Media,
- Are leaders born or made?
- Artificial Intelligence and its Impact

The students are sharing their ideas, debating viewpoints, reaching a consensus, or analyzing a case. This activity is used to develop and assess skills like communication, teamwork, logical thinking, leadership, and critical analysis. The objective of the group discussion activity is to engage participants actively, encourage the exchange of diverse ideas, improve interpersonal skills, and practice collaborative problem-solving.

Conclusion

The group discussion successfully explored the topics of artificial intelligence, social media impact and leader or born or made. The group did not reach single consensus. Most of the students increased self-confidence and openness in expressing their opinions by the end of the session. The group discussion activity succeeded in fostering a deeper understanding of the topic, critical thinking, and teamwork.
